

Fluorescence microscopy

Fluorescent labels with distinguishable spectral characteristics are versatile tools for multicolour detection formats. Labeled secondary antibodies as well as small haptens like biotin or phalloidines can be used to investigate processes at cellular level.

